

Each of the following describes an object changing in some way.

- A. A cup of ice melting
- B. breaking a cold pack

Describe how the energy contained in the systems is different before and after these processes happen. If the energy goes down, why, where does it go, if energy went up, explain where it may have come from, if it stayed the same how might you know? A diagram may help.